Term 3 commences with new hopes

A new term means new friendships, fresh discoveries, and lots of laughter echoing through our classrooms. We're so excited to share this journey of learning, growing, and exploring together.

At the early stages of early childhood, numeracy is not about worksheets or formal lessons — it's about engagement, exploration, and fun. With engagement in understanding quantity, sorting & classifying, patterns & sequencing, measuring & comparing, familiarizing with mathematical language such as less, big, small, same...., children naturally develop confidence in early math thinking that will support all future learning.
